Dear Sir

The address of your paper has been altered in accordance with your direction, & I trust you now receive it regularly.

We very much miss your occasional & valuable communications on American affairs, & are sorry that your numerous engagements have compelled you to suspend them. We hope this is not permanent. Any intelligence in a private way would be especially valuable at the present critical time; - we should not object to its being short, but the more frequent the better. We will willingly defray all expences incurred, in the shape of postage &c.

Do you know anybody in America who would be at the trouble of furnishing us with one or more articles, on the practical working of the voluntary principle amongst the religious public & on any plans in operation for diminishing the inequalities that obtain between the payments to pastors? Information on that subject would be highly acceptable. Apologising for the trouble I am giving you & wishing you abundant success in your labours on behalf of freedom & religion

I am Dear Sir Yours cordially

My brother desires his kind regards. C. S. Miall
